

WYOMING TROPHY WHITETAIL

The eastern slope of the Bighorn Mountains is home to the best kept whitetail hunting secret in the world. Fast running cold water means disease free deer herds that were not affected by Blue Tongue over the past few years. This region is made up of large tracts of private lands in agriculture and rolling foothills. This is perfect whitetail habitat that promotes high populations and great trophy genetics. Its not uncommon for our clients to see hundreds of deer each day they are in the field. Selective hunters will look over dozens of bucks before harvesting one. Archery season is in September and our clients have over a 90% shooting opportunity rate on P&Y Record book bucks or larger. We rifle hunt from mid October through the end of November by spot n stalk (some stand hunts available as well) with a 100% shooting opportunity on trophy bucks. October hunts can be combined with a rifle antelope as well. All hunting packages include meals and lodging, guides, and expert field care of meat and trophy. Please contact our office for more information on these world class hunts.
